SkiStar Norway welcomes you to memorable mountain experiences without corona restrictions: It's time to book your skiing holiday

It is high season for all ski enthusiasts, who want to head to the mountains to enjoy some long-awaited days of skiing. As of 12 February, the Norwegian government has lifted the corona restrictions. This means that everything is in place for SkiStar Trysil and Hemsedal most popular part of the season, and according to the positive weather report for the coming days there is also lots of snow to be expected. If you haven't booked your ski holiday yet for this season, it's time to do so now.

"Just what the doctor ordered! To ensure that our guests have a memorable experience with us is always top priority. We can now offer a complete, all-around winter holiday experience, with activities such as a Valle Show for the littleones. We are also extremely glad that after two years, we will be able to have après-ski again. It's going to be a dream skiing holiday," says Gudrun Sanaker Lohne, Destination Manager at SkiStar Trysil.

Fresh powder, brighter days, longer opening hours, and good accommodation

The better part of the season has arrived when the days get brighter and opening hours are extended. The weather reports for the upcoming week also look promising, predicting a good amount of snow.

"We have had a longed-awaited arrival of snow last night, and over the next few days we are expecting yet another amount in line with the weather forecast. And for those who want to take advantage of the great conditions: we have great last-minute deals for those who want to go to the mountains this winter and still have some leave around Easter," says Andreas Smith-Erichsen, Destination Manager at SkiStar Hemsedal. But you will have to be quick, because these offers will quickly be torn off the shelves, he adds.
